

THE COURTS.

CRUELTY NOT EXCUSED BY STATION.
Julia Aumann brought an action in the Court of Common Pleas two years ago for a separation from her husband, Louis Aumann, on the ground of cruelty. There was a reconciliation in January, 1870, and the suit was dropped. Then the husband renewed his acts of cruelty and the wife was compelled to begin another action for a separation. On the trial before Judge J. F. Daly she testified that she reconciled with her husband; that he beat her again against the state; that he beat her with a broomstick, and various other acts wreaked his drunken or ill-tempered fury on her. In defense it was attempted to be shown that the wife was at times guilty of her own wrongs. The court held that she was confined to her bed, and that the wife was held to the obligations of a person in "better society."

Judge Daly, in his opinion handed down yesterday, thinks that the acts of cruelty were sufficient to sustain the wife's claim for a separation.

At the Temple Brooklyns, 1020 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., Morris Ingalls, subject: "West Point and the Color Line," Key-note. A son saved. Baptism at the conclusion of the event.

NOT STANDING BY HIS GUARANTEE.

A second trial of the suit of Philip A. Fitzpatrick against L. C. Woodruff for damages growing out of railroad investments was begun before Judge Freedman in the Superior Court, yesterday. Fitzpatrick made the acquaintance in 1872 of Mr. Woodruff, who was connected with the Buffalo paper manufacturing firm. Mr. Fitzpatrick says that Mr. Woodruff learning that he had some spare money invested offered him $10,000 of the stock of the Erie and Geneva Valley Railroad Company at 90 cents on the dollar. Mr. Woodruff also gave him a written guarantee that he should have his investment repaid when he would take the stock back at any time Mr. Fitzpatrick might choose. The stock afterward fell in value, and Mr. Woodruff sent to expect Mr. Woodruff to make good the loss. The jury on the trial six weeks ago disagreed, deciding eleven to one in Mr. Fitzpatrick's favor. The case will go to the jury on the trial of the trial. Mr. Woodruff denies having received any inducements to Mr. Fitzpatrick to make the investment.

CIVIL NOTES.

An injunction was granted yesterday by Judge Bernoulli in the Brooklyn City Court, on the application of the First Reformed Presbyterian Church, restraining James Sample and Thomas Nevins from withdrawing from the ranks of the Brooklyn Safe Deposit Company $5,000 belonging to the church property. The company is located in Dutchess, near Newville, was set up in April, and the surplus, after paying the mortgage, is $5,200, which Messrs. Sample and Nevins, its trustees, deposited for the church. There are no funds left over, and one party is trying to get the money from the other.

The will of Mrs. Sarah Hughes, who died recently at No. 327 Myrtle Avenue, bequeathing $40,000, was the subject of contest before Justice Livingston, in Brooklyn, yesterday. The property is in the main left to one son, Oscar, and another son, William, disputed the probate on the ground of undue influence.

In the divorce suit of Elizabeth B. Young brought against Jefferson Young, a retired naval officer, the plaintiff was awarded $30 a month alimony, and $600 contingency fee, by Judge McGuire Thursday in Brooklyn. The suit will soon be tried.

Leave to sue the receiver of the Long Island Railway Company was granted to W. G. Drury, by Justice Cooke, in Brooklyn, yesterday. The suit is for $5,000 damages, for injuries received in a collision at Valley Stream, expected to be filed.
